The Crucible by Arthur Miller

April 27 - May 7

Thursday - Saturday at 7:30 p.m.

Sundays at 2:00 p.m.

Winner of the 1953 Tony Award for Best Play. Inspired by the events of the era of McCarthyism, playwright Arthur Miller explores the mass political and cultural hysteria created by the U.S. Government's attempts to suppress Communism and the radical leftist activity in America. Using the avenue of the Salem Witch Trials, Miller's story focuses upon a young farmer, his wife, and a young servant-girl who maliciously causes the wife's arrest for witchcraft.

"This exciting drama about the Puritan purge of witchcraft in old Salem is both a gripping historical play and a timely parable of our contemporary society. A powerful drama." —NY Times.

The Tempest at ASF

Time: 7:30PM-10:30PM

Location: Alabama Shakespeare Festival, One Festival Drive Montgomery, AL 36117

The Tempest by William Shakespeare, modern language script translated by Kenneth Cavender

April 20, 2017 - May 14, 2017

Producing Artistic Director Geoffrey Sherman's final Shakespeare production at ASF, The Tempest is one of Shakespeare's last plays, crafted with themes of magic, illusion and music. Prospero, the rightful Duke of Milan, has been banished to a remote island. Wanting to restore his daughter to her rightful place, he conjures up a storm, an enormous tempest, to lure his usurping brother Antonio and King Alonso of Naples to the island. Prospero's machinations reveal Antonio's lowly nature and bring about the redemption of the king and the marriage of Miranda to the king's son. This is a world premiere production of Kenneth Cavender's translated script, which has slightly updated some of the archaic language of the play, as part of the Oregon Shakespeare Festival's "Play On" initiative.

Recommended for ages 12 and up.
